

Jefferson/Franklin Consortium Accommodation Policy

It is the policy of the Jefferson/Franklin Consortium and its subrecipients to comply with the Americans with Disabilities Act, 29 CFR 38 and Section of WIOA. Jefferson/Franklin Consortium is committed to the fair and equal employment of people with disabilities.

Jefferson/Franklin Consortium and its subrecipients do not discriminate against qualified job applicants, employees, participants, or any member of the public with disabilities regarding job application procedures, hiring, employee compensation, advancement, training, discharge or other terms, conditions, and privileges of employment, WIOA enrollments/placements or WIOA funding.

Job applicants and employees with disabilities shall be provided reasonable employment- related accommodations, when necessary, unless the accommodation would impose an undue hardship. This policy provides guidelines for individuals who wish to apply for reasonable accommodations with Jefferson/Franklin Consortium and its subrecipients.

Disability: means, with respect to an individual,

- A physical or mental impairment that substantially limits one or more of the major life activities of such individual;
- A record of such an impairment; or
- Is regarded as having such an impairment.

Regarding any aid, benefit, service, training, and employment, a recipient must provide reasonable accommodations to qualified individuals with disabilities who are applicants, registrants, eligible applicants/registrants, participants, employees, or applicants for employment, unless providing the accommodation would cause undue hardship.

Reasonable accommodation: The term reasonable accommodation means;

- Modifications or adjustments to a job application process that enable a qualified applicant with a disability to be considered for the position such as qualified applicant desires; or
- Modifications or adjustments to the work environment, or to the manner or circumstances under which the position held or desired is customarily performed, that enable a qualified individual with a disability to perform the essential functions of that position; or
- Modifications or adjustments that enable a covered entity's employee with a disability to enjoy equal benefits and privileges of employment as are enjoyed by its other similarly situated employees without disabilities.

In those circumstances where a recipient believes that the proposed accommodation would cause undue hardship, the recipient has the burden of proving that the accommodation would result in such hardship. The recipient must make the decision that the accommodation would cause such hardship only after considering all factors listed in the definition of “undue hardship.”

Undue hardship: An undue hardship exists if an accommodation:

- Would cause an employer to incur significant difficulty or expense, in comparison to the financial resources available to the employer.
- Is overly extensive, substantial, or disruptive or would alter the nature or operation of the business.
- Would cause a lack of necessary staffing; or
- Would jeopardize security or health.
- An employer is not obligated to make an accommodation that would cause an “undue hardship.”

The decision must be accompanied by a written statement of the recipient's reasons for reaching that conclusion. The recipient must provide a copy of the statement of reasons to the individual or individuals who requested the accommodation.

If a requested accommodation would result in undue hardship, the recipient must, after consultation with an individual with a disability (or individuals with disabilities), take any other action that would not result in such hardship, but would nevertheless ensure that, to the maximum extent possible, individuals with disabilities receive the aid, benefit, service, training, or employment provided by the recipient.

Regarding any aid, benefit, service, training, and employment, a recipient must also make reasonable modifications in policies, practices, or procedures when the modifications are necessary to avoid discrimination based on disability, unless making the modifications would fundamentally alter the nature of the service, program, or activity.

Fundamental alteration means:

- A. A change in the essential nature of a program or activity as defined in this part, including but not limited to an aid, service, benefit, or training; or
- B. A cost that a recipient can demonstrate would result in an undue burden. Factors to be considered in making the determination whether the cost of a modification would result in such a burden include:
 - a. The nature and net cost of the modification needed, taking into consideration the availability of tax credits and deductions, and/or outside financial assistance, for the modification;
 - b. The overall financial resources of the facility or facilities involved in the provision of the modification, including:
 - i. The number of persons aided, benefited, served, or trained by, or employed at, the facility or facilities; and

- ii. The effect the modification would have on the expenses and resources of the facility or facilities;
- c. The overall financial resources of the recipient, including:
 - i. The overall size of the recipient;
 - ii. The number of persons aided, benefited, served, trained, or employed by the recipient; and
 - iii. The number, type, and location of the recipient's facilities;
- d. The type of operation or operations of the recipient, including:
 - i. The geographic separateness and administrative or fiscal relationship of the facility or facilities in question to the recipient; and
 - ii. Where the modification sought is employment-related, the composition, structure, and functions of the recipient's workforce; and
- e. The impact of the modification upon the operation of the facility or facilities, including:
 - i. The impact on the ability of other participants to receive aid, benefit, service, or training, or of other employees to perform their duties; and
 - ii. The impact on the facility's ability to carry out its mission.

In those circumstances where a recipient believes that the proposed modification would fundamentally alter the program, activity, or service, the recipient has the burden of proving that the modification would result in such an alteration. The decision must be accompanied by a written statement of the recipient's reasons for reaching that conclusion. The recipient must provide a copy of the statement of reasons to the individual or individuals who requested the modification.

If a modification would result in a fundamental alteration, the recipient must take any other action that would not result in such an alteration, but would nevertheless ensure that, to the maximum extent possible, individuals with disabilities receive the aid, benefits, services, training, or employment provided by the recipient.
